Morning Sun Motel

Narembeen's newest quality accommodation.

In Narembeen, tradesmen have been busy building what is soon to be Narembeen's newest quality accommodation. Des and Rosemary Smoker give us a little insight into what is happening on the corner of Thomas and Stanley Street.

We could see a need in our district in the town of Narembeen for additional quality accommodation. In September 2019 we purchased 22 and 24 Thomas St, in the centre of Narembeen, and set about making plans for obtaining planning approval to build a new motel. This was granted in March 2020.

We approached Stallion Homes to commence plans for building a 16 unit motel, consisting of two buildings running East and West, so the rooms would have large windows facing North. We did this for guests to enjoy the winter sun and minimise, as much as possible, the summer sun.

We designed entry to the car park from Thomas St and exit via the rear lane. Our instructions to Stallion Homes were to build solid, spacious units with emphasis on quality sound, heat and cold insulation.

Our desire and motto for The Morning Sun Motel is to provide clean, quiet and comfortable accommodation. To achieve this, Stallion Homes is building us a premium quality building.

Large limestone fences and garden beds are included for privacy, quietness and aesthetics, incorporating two long garden beds within the complex.

The complex consists of four large rooms with one queen and one king single bed, 3 seater couch, large tv, large desk and double case rack. Ten standard rooms with one queen size bed, couch, tv, desk and case rack. Plus, two rooms that conform to disabled standards. Bathrooms are large and well appointed, and a laundry with various amenities is to be included for guest use.

Narembeen has extreme temperatures, cold winter nights and hot summer days. The motel is constructed to maximise the comfort for our guests using environmentally friendly design techniques. The Morning Sun Motel name was chosen to reflect the design of placing the beds under the windows, allowing guests to enjoy the morning sun for warmth and light in the winter months.

In addition, the name Morning Sun, without changing the pronunciation, and adjusting a few letters, becomes Mourning Son: and as we lost our son Adrian in 2011, in a small way this reflects memory of Adrian.

Kyla Padfield is looking after administration and advertising for the Morning Sun Motel. She has been setting up IT systems, so that the motel will be using all the latest technologies, including keyless entry to all rooms. Kyla is qualified, friendly and the capable contact person for the motel.

All work has been progressing steadily on the motel, limestone fencing is nearly finished, and the rooms are close to lock up stage.

The wheatbelt town of Narembeen has been good to our family for many years. Narembeen and its land, services and people, have provided us with good fortune, friendship and much kindness. For this reason, we desire to continue to invest and live in such a good place.

We hope to keep you informed of the progress through our Facebook page, Morning Sun Motel.

Thank you,

Des and Rosemary Smoker

Narembeen, WA

I love the sense of community in my town. Everyone knows everyone else and there's always someone willing to help you out. The Narembeen Workers Hotel Bar & Bistro is where us locals go for dinner and a drink on the weekends. And sport is a huge part of the community. From tennis to netball, lawn bowls, hockey and AFL, Narembeen's got it.

MARCH 2021

Cemetery upgrade for the future

Shire of Narembeen, Western Australia, recently undertook significant re-development works at the Emu Hill Public Cemetery in Narembeen.

Shire President, Councillor Rhonda Cole, said, "The creation of a visually appealing entry into the Cemetery, reflection areas and an improved meeting area were important design considerations as well as improving the connection between the different elements of the Cemetery site through improved signage and public access areas.

"The safety, privacy and comfort of visitors was also taken into consideration during the design process."

Shire of Narembeen recognises the cultural and historical significance of the cemetery and was committed to ensuring it was well preserved and enhanced, in keeping with the natural features and surrounding landscape.

One of the 'hero' statements of the project was the replacement of the niche wall (memorial wall).

Cr Cole said, "The Shire wanted much more than the current old-fashioned plaque on a brick wall that has defined memorials in cemeteries for decades.

"We wanted to provide a memorial wall that genuinely played a role for those left behind and for future generations to come.

"What evolved was a unique wall that provides a place for families to visit, to focus and reflect, a tribute for future generations to come."

Works undertaken at the Cemetery included:

- a new entry statement
- new perimeter fence and gates to improve site and visitor access
- new niche/memorial wall with reflection area
- replacement plaques for all memorials in niche wall

- new landscaping with water tolerant plants
- resealed roadways/paved pathways
- new signage, and
- new carpark.

Shire of Narembeen formed a working group for the project, which included councillors and Council staff as well as two volunteer community members whose input and dedication to the project was very much appreciated.

Emu Hill Public Cemetery re-development benefits the Narembeen community.

Mt Walker Golf News

Sunday 18th April was our open day, as it was rescheduled due to the inclement weather the week before.

The weather was great and we saw a small field of 7 players enjoying a Ambrose round sponsored by Greg & Carolyn Fagan.

The first ball for the season was hit by Dave Campbell as our club veterans were unable to attend.

The day was won by Colin Ashmore, Darren Phillips, Paul Findley & Merle Phillips
 Second winners were The Posties team, consisting of Carol Fagan, Dave & Maree Campbell.

The Queen.

By Craig Gmeiner

The world needs more people like Elizabeth Windsor. Born into perhaps the most well known family in the world she has led a life firmly in the spotlight for almost a century. Married at 21 and coronated at 25, Elizabeth has committed herself to a life of sacrifice and service in a manner of which the value can never be measured. She stayed in England during the blitz where the Germans would relentlessly bomb England every night in what were perhaps the darkest of days. Then at the end of the war she anonymously mingled through the crowds of revellers to not move the focus off everyone who was celebrating something bigger than anyone else. Then yesterday, she sat alone at a funeral held for husband of 73 years where only a small number of people could attend because of the pandemic. She is a leader in every sense of the word and we could all learn a lot from her.

So many things have improved in the world over time that we are truly living in the best of times. We live longer because the health system is better. People in trouble get more assistance than ever before and the ability for those in affluence to assist those in poverty has never been stronger. Simply put the opportunity for an individual to reach their dreams or influence others has never been stronger. The only thing that has really got worse in the world is the way we all act and the way we treat each other.

The fact the resilience needs to be taught in schools is cause enough for us all to sit back and think. Pop Culture promotes young people to be judgemental rather than one that assists and also encourages selfishness rather than the opposite. Never before have young people wanted the result with out doing the work. Never before do so many expect respect for you just walking in the door and then crack it for not getting it. This is a problem.

The media this morning seems to be bemoaning the fact that the Queen sat alone at her funeral. What if we shifted that narrative from the fact that she did, to the way that she did it. No fanfare, no histrionics she just did what was needed. We could spend more time talking about the strength of character it must have taken to sit so stoically under the gaze of the world. We could promote the idea that people can not only create great lives for themselves but for others if they just worked to take the focus off themselves.

We all need leaders and role models, no matter how old we are. There are some wonderful people that we can take a leaf from and some that we do that we probably shouldn't. Politicians, sports stars, musicians and movie stars are the people that we look at to get ideas on how to live our lives. Beautiful people with fast cars and big boats. Maybe though, just maybe, we should all shift our focus a bit and take a bit more advice from a little old lady who quietly sat at a funeral.

The upside, the positives away from the scoreboard, can often be lost in discussing footy. It shouldn't though for it is through enjoyment and positivity that people get excited about what the future may hold. Upside, is the perfect word to use when starting a conversation about the effort of the Hawks on Saturday.

The Ressies started the day like a house on fire with Tom Latham marking and goaling within the first minute of the contest. In a designated shootout with his brother for who gets the most kicks Tommy would continue in this vein for the rest of the day. With Tom at half forward Ben was gathering kicks at will further up the ground, often showing his opponent a clean set of heels.

There have been many times over the last couple of years where the Ressies have copped a belting. Many players in the side on Saturday had played in some such contests. The further the game evolved on Saturday it became clear that this would be a day where the Ressies would be able to dish one out. They were dominant right across the ground. In the middle Nikau Brown, Rhi Green and Baden Kennedy were dominant. Down forward Tommy found helpers in Rosie Hunter, Lindsay Brown and Noel Moseley.

The upside in this contest had several parts to it. Firstly the enjoyment and smiles the players were outwardly showing as they played their footy. The youth in the side like Nikau Brown, Rhi Green, Ollie Miller, Archie Saunders, Baden Kennedy just to name some of them. Then there was the passion the boys had for taking their day in the sun, for there have been plenty that are the opposite. It was a strong win and one that had a lot of upside to it.

Ressies 21-17 143

Hawks 7-9 51

Corrigin 1-4 10

Corrigin 6-10 46

Best: N.Brown, R.Green, Miller, T.Latham, Best: Hooper, Hislop, Spinks, Main

The upside to the main game grew and grew the further it went. Firstly, the Hawks once again displayed an ability to get the ball back. There were long periods where the ball was stuck between the arcs and a lot of that was to do with the defensive efforts of the Hawks. The midfield worked both ways and it payed off. More upside came from the way the side was able to absorb pressure in their backline. A large part of the first stanza was played in Corrigin forward fifty but scoring was hard to do.

Upside came from the efforts of two key forwards in Cody Duncan and James Kennedy. Both had the better of their opponents and created shots on goal. They worked hard up and back and showed that, through the course of the season, they could become a pairing that is increasingly hard to match up on. Then there was the growing efforts of ruckman Adam Miolini. Working away against bigger opponents Miolini not only competed well in the air but did the same on the ground. He's just going to get better.

Then finally there was the way that the boys fought back in a gripping last quarter. They never faulted when they were challenged displaying an ability to stay calm and think their way through a contest. They took it upon themselves to, simply put, never lie down. Now there's plenty of upside in that.

From the Managers Desk

Hello everybody!

Vanessa has been away this week, attending a Strategic Planning Workshop with DPIRD (Department of Primary Industries and Regional Development) in Perth. These workshops are specifically for CRC's that are funded through Community Service Contracts and are to prepare for the DPIRD Contract from 2022 onwards. It is also an important opportunity for all CRC's to network with each other and DIPRD staff, where they discuss things like:

- How is our current contract running? What is working well? What should we think about changing?
- Review of the community services tender process
- Exploring the services CRCs think will be most meaningful for the next contract period.

Vanessa is back Thursday, 22 April. We cant wait to hear all about it :)

We had our second school holidays activity last Thursday, 10 kids came and got a movie ticket, popcorn and a juice and watched the movie Wonder Park. We hope all the kids enjoyed it and are ready to start term 2!

As most of you would know, we had our 2021 Youthweek event last Friday. 23 kids took off in the bus to Mulka's Cave and Wave Rock in Hyden, where they had to answer quiz questions, create stories, complete activities, and most of all, have fun. They also explored the Gnamma Trail and Hippos Yawn. It was a very busy day but by all accounts it was one of the best Youthweek events yet!!

The event carried on into the night with a disco at Mt Arrowsmith Sports Club where the kids danced the night away. Thank you to the P&C for their wonderful catering. Well done to Aden Cole and Wren Cheetham for winning the best dressed award, there were some great costumes that's for sure. I wonder what the student councillors will have in store for us next year!

If you haven't already, please send in any updated contact information that you have about yourself, or an existing or new business for the 2021/2022 Community Directory, work is underway and details will not be changed unless we are notified. Forms are available from the CRC office or on the Shire of Narembreen Website.

Have a great week!

Grain Brokers Australia Weekly Market Report

April 20, 2021

Nigeria's people to pay for poor government policy...

Nigeria's Central Bank took to Twitter last Friday to announce the extraordinary step of cutting off the supply of foreign currency to importers of wheat and sugar. The embattled country is attempting to conserve US dollar reserves amid a domestic recession and spiralling foreign debt.

The Central Bank of Nigeria (CBN) was a big seller of hard currency in foreign exchange markets on Friday, pushing the Nigerian naira to a record 437.62 against the US dollar. And rising food costs continue to be the key driver of inflation, with the annual rate rising 1.6 per cent last month to 22.95 per cent.

The oil-rich nation relies heavily on food and agricultural imports valued at over US$10 billion annually to feed a population that recently soared above the 210 million mark. However, low oil prices and the ongoing COVID-19 lockdown restrictions have stifled Nigeria's economy and increased borrowings. Revenue from oil and gas exports fund 90 per cent of the country's annual budget.

Nigeria is Africa's most populous nation and the continent's biggest economy. In 2015 the CBN implemented a foreign exchange (FX) restriction list for 41 items it believed could be produced locally instead of imported. The currency controls were designed to ease pressure on the local currency amid a shortage of US dollars but instead led to skyrocketing inflation and further weakened the naira, making imports more expensive in local currency terms.

The list has expanded to 44 items in the ensuing years, with corn added in July 2020. In 2019 the government banned access to foreign exchange for dairy imports in a bid to stimulate domestic production. This infuriated industry groups arguing that domestic milk production was not enough to meet local demand. After months of discussion and protest, the CBN was forced to lift the foreign exchange restrictions in February 2020 for six firms to import milk.

According to the United States Department of Agriculture, Nigeria's wheat production in the 2020/21 season will be a paltry 60,000 metric tonne. That equates to 1.2 per cent of domestic demand, which is forecast at 4.95 million metric tonne this marketing year. This is despite ten years of collaboration between the government, flour millers and farmers aimed at greatly reducing imports by increasing local wheat production to 50 per cent of domestic demand.

The Nigerian government collects a five per cent tariff on all wheat imports, plus an additional 15 per cent levy, which is earmarked for the national wheat development program. Despite Nigerian millers' preference for imported wheat, the government is requiring millers to purchase local wheat at a fixed price of US$400 per metric tonne; well above international values.

However, the farmers prefer to sell their limited production to the Sahel countries to the north and non-government organisations (NGOs) who feed displaced citizens in the crisis-torn northern regions of the country where terror group Boko Haram continues to commit atrocities. According to the UN Refugee Agency, violence perpetrated by Boko Haram has affected 26 million people in the Lake Chad region and displaced 2.6 million of them since 2009.

The USDA has Nigeria pencilled in for wheat imports of 5.50 million metric tonne with around 500,000 metric tonne of exports, as wheat flour, to landlocked Sahel countries to the north, namely Niger, Chad and Mali. The import number is up 3 per cent on the previous year and is 18 per cent higher than the 2018/19 season.

With only 50,000 metric tonne of wheat going into domestic livestock rations, that means that 99 per cent, or 4.9 million metric tonne, of Nigerian wheat demand, is for human consumption. Around 70 per cent of the flour milled from wheat goes into food products such as bread, semolina, pasta and other wheat flour products.

Russia, the US., Black Sea exporters, The European Union, Canada and Australia are the major wheat suppliers to Nigeria, with relative prices and sea freight rates determining their market share from season to season. Larger exportable surpluses and lower prices out of the Black Sea region have increased the market share from that part of the world in recent years.

Nevertheless, imports of cheaper wheat from the Baltic states of Latvia and Lithuania have also grown as domestic millers try to reduce the price of flour and increase their profitability. The mills are blending the low-quality Baltic wheat with more expensive, higher quality, Hard Red Winter out of the United States.

Australian milling wheat is also popular with Nigerian manufacturers when prices allow. More than 300,000 metric tonne was exported to the West African nation in 2017 and 60,000 metric tonne was shipped in February this year.

The changing market dynamics have reduced the market share of US origin wheat from a high of 91 per cent of Nigerian imports in the 2010/11 marketing year to just 35 per cent in 2019/20. That said, Nigeria has consistently been either the second or third largest buyer of US wheat since the 2015/16 season, importing between 836,000 metric tonne and 1.09 million metric tonne annually.

Last week's announcement by the government appears to be one more in a series of ill-thought policies aimed at reforming food production in Nigeria. This season's wheat harvest is happening right now, and the next crop is not planted until November. The harvested area is estimated to be about 60,000 hectares which is relatively unchanged for the last six years and puts the average yield at just one metric tonne per hectare.

The domestic market cannot possibly react to the government's new policy and feed the huge population without imports. If the government's stated goal of 50 per cent self-sufficiency is to be achieved, it would require an additional 2.4 million hectares of land for wheat production using existing agronomic practices. This would mean a reallocation of corn and sorghum hectares, jeopardising Nigeria's self-sufficiency status for those commodities.

The foreign exchange limit is a desperate move from a government rife with corruption and an abysmal economic management record. The policy will affect almost the entire population, and its people will simply be collateral damage if the policy is implemented. There will be a local reaction, but will it be enough to sway the policy makers?

Australia's Biggest Morning Tea hopes to reconnect the nation

With many Australians still feeling the impacts of COVID-19, Australia's Biggest Morning Tea has never been so important.

Following the tumultuous year that was 2020, distress and isolation challenges have been heightened, especially for people affected by cancer. Australia's Biggest Morning Tea is a chance for people to come together this May to reconnect and support those affected by cancer.

Whether it is virtually or from across the table, the official day to host a 2021 morning tea is Thursday, 27 May, however, you can register to host at any time throughout May or June. Cancer Council WA's Wheatbelt Regional Education Officer, Melissa Pickering, said it is crucial the community rally behind those in the region affected by cancer and encourages everyone to check in with friends, family and colleagues over a Biggest Morning Tea event.

Ms Pickering said Cancer Council WA is fortunate to receive support from the Wheatbelt community through events like Australia's Biggest Morning Tea and hopes this year's fundraiser lifts the nation's spirits. "Since Australia's Biggest Morning Tea began in 1994, millions of Australians have come together over a cuppa and a bite to eat in support of those affected by cancer," Ms Pickering said. "We have hosts across the State who have supported us for more than 28 years. This generosity enables us to continue our work in cancer research, prevention programs, advocacy and support services."

Participants are encouraged to host Australia's Biggest Morning Tea their way – whether it's at home with friends or family, a simple morning tea with workmates, virtually (COVID-19 style) or a gathering in a local community or at school.

This year, Cancer Council hopes to recruit more than 20,000 generous morning tea hosts and raise more than $7 million nationally to help all affected by cancer right across Australia. All donations fund Cancer Council's life-saving cancer research, prevention programs, advocacy and support services.

Host or join an Australia's Biggest Morning Tea this May/June to raise funds for Cancer Council's life-saving cancer research, prevention programs, advocacy and support services. For more information or to register/donate please visit biggestmorningtea.com.au or call 1300 65 65 85.

If you or a loved one needs support following a cancer diagnosis, please call 13 11 20 or visit www.cancerwa.org.au

I was in the McDonald's drive-through in at lunch time yesterday and the young lady behind me leaned on her horn because I was taking too long to place my order.

"Take the high road," I thought to myself. So when I got to the first window I paid for her order along with my own.

The cashier must have told her what I'd done, because as we moved up she leaned out her window and waved to me and mouthed "Thank you.", obviously embarrassed that I had repaid her rudeness with a kindness.

When I got to the second window I showed them both receipts and took her food too.

Bowel cancer: An important message

Bowel cancer is the second biggest cancer killer in Australia, and often has no symptoms in its early stages.

But some good news is, if found early, over 90% of people diagnosed with bowel cancer will beat it. That's why the National Bowel Cancer Screening Program is so important!

Eligible Australians aged 50 to 74 receive the free at-home bowel cancer screening test every two years. The kit is the best way to detect bowel cancer early because in its early stages, there are often no symptoms or warning signs. This was the case for Brian Pearcey, below. Brian was diagnosed with bowel cancer at 72 after experiencing no symptoms at all. Luckily for Brian, the cancer was picked up by the National Bowel Cancer Screening Program's home test kit. Brian's story is a powerful reminder to participate in the program if eligible.

Do the test - it's quick, simple, and convenient. And it might just save your life!

Screening is for people with NO symptoms. If you DO have symptoms, such as blood in your poo even just once or changes to your usual bowel habits that go on for more than 3 weeks - visit a GP, clinic nurse, or Aboriginal health worker straight away to have the symptom investigated early on.

To check your eligibility, order a replacement kit, or update your mailing address, call the program Infoline on 1800 627 701.
